

Hello! Bonjour! Intro to Canadian Life EX. version

Happy New Year everyone! It's your Coordinator of International relations (CIR) Mary again. In the Kyotanabe City newspaper- Hotto Kyotanabe 2018 January issue, I introduced about famous Canadian foods. As you may be wondering, where can I get the food then? Don't worry! Now I am going to introduce about New York Fries and Tim Hortons, two of the most representative Canadian fast food chains, where you can get some Canadian food experience from. Canadians love these two because they are cheap and everywhere.

New York Fries

NEW YORK FRIES

New York Fries is a Canadian fast food chain specialize in French fries. They are famous for its poutine. In 1984, two Canadian brothers opened up a small French fries stand in a corner block in New York. The freshly fried fries quickly became popular and the stand soon became a chained business. Switched its base from New York back to Canada, New York Fries currently has over 180 stores in Canada and steadily grows as a Canadian-owned business.

What's special about New York Fries is that they grow and manage their potatoes right from the beginning. From cheese, gravy, chili, sour cream and salsa, these ingredients and condiments are all made in-house. As for menu, you can get poutine that contains meat such as beef or chicken. There are five different poutines you can get. As for size, they come in regular or large.

Tim Hortons

Tim Hortons is the largest fast food chain in Canada. They are famous for their signature donuts but they also offer coffee, soup and sandwich for variation in its menu. Timbits is a popular item that features mini ball-shaped donuts packed in a cardboard box.

Double Double is a must for Tim Hortons. Double Double means coffee with two cream and two sugar. Canadians almost always ask for Double Double whenever they order coffee. Try a Double Double next time and you'll love it!
